

LITERARY ITEMS.

Thackeray's works, in new and complete form, are announced by Smith, Elder, & Co. The series will be completed in about 20 volumes, at seven and one-half dollars per volume; it will contain all the illustrations from the original editions, which will be printed from the woodcuts, these never before having been used, and some additional new ones. The price will be $1.25, and they are in possession of new and interesting matter, and letters from Thackeray to various authors, which will be printed in the series.

There is a rumor current that The London Daily News, an able paper, which has never met with the success it deserved, is to be reduced in price, and to enter the lists with the penny daily papers. We hope that the original intentions of the proprietors will be carried out, and that the paper will be published at a lower rate.

The New York News is enough to make it a literary curiosity. Under the successive editorship of Charles Dickens, John Forster, W. H. Willis, and other gentlemen of ability and experience, it has always retained on its pages a notable talent; although it will be published at one time, will make a formidable rival to The Standard, The Star, and The Telegraph.

In reference to Mrs. Dall's "The College, the Master, and the Court," The Atheneum says: "Mrs. Caroline H. Dall is a writer on the question of women's rights whom we always read with the respect due to her knowledge and deep convictions. She has given us before her public for many years the most decided and enthusiastic efforts to tell a startling tale, and clothe her hero in glory by the deed, but a true worker in the cause of female education, who has measured the relations of her means to her designs. Unlike others, she has not been a failure, and, so far as we can see, she has no desire to put in his pocket her money and make suggestions."

"This book has the advantage of conciseness and emphaticness, and most interesting subjects of interest, and sources of information are well treated. It is best that we leave the traveling to put in his pocket to her money and make suggestions."

HOMESPUN; ITS SCENERY, ART, AND PEOPLE. By James M. Peppin, Professor in Yale College. Price $1.25.

OLD ENGLAND: A HISTORY OF THE COUNTRY FROM THE TIME OF THE SAXONS TO THE END OF THE THIRTEENTH CENTURY. By Edward L. Hayes, Commander of the Expedition. Embellished with six full-page illustrations, drawn by Brabae, White, and others. From the subjects of "The Pilgrim Fathers," "The English Reformation," and "The English Revolution." No book so seek to introduce English history into family life by a rich and a bayonet-sharp, she has always understood that the only possible—perhaps the only desirable—change in the condition of her sex is to be effected by an opposition to man's authority, and not, but with the approval and the aid of all good men. Such a woman, making her sex a little lower than the angels, is at all events practical."
